Jaycees $150 Away From National Recognition; Money For Float

Fulton, Kentucky is only $150 away from possible nation-wide recognition! That is the amount needed by the Fulton Jaycees in order to prepare their entry in the National Jaycee Convention Parade which will be held in Atlanta, Georgia on June 21.

The Fulton Club was one of only four in the State that received invitations to enter the parade competition. The others—all larger cities—were Frankfort, Lexington and Louisville.

The local float will play up Fulton as the "Gateway to the South" and will feature a large map of Kentucky with Fulton spotted in large letters. "Miss Jaycee" and her attendants will also ride the float and will throw out souvenir seeds from the Ferry-Morse Seed Co.

Last year, the local Jaycee float took second place in the nation at the National Convention in St. Louis and this year there is a good chance that the club could bring home the first place trophy.

All that is now needed is for the citizens of Fulton to come through, as they have been known to do before, and make up the $150 deficit so that work can be started on the float.

Any member of the Jaycees will be glad to take the much-needed donations.

Ensign Wright Performs Solo Flight On Carrier

ENSEIGN WRIGHT

Ensign Hendon O. (Don) Wright, stationed at the U. S. Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Florida, closed his naval air training Tuesday with a solo landing on the Aircraft Carrier Antietam. Wright, who graduated from the United States Naval Academy last June, has been undergoing extensive training at the Florida base for nearly a year. His landing on the carrier was performed Tuesday afternoon.

Ensign Wright and his wife, the former Ruth Caldwell, are expected in Fulton this week-end for a short visit before going to Corpus Christi, Texas where he will be stationed. His new naval air force duties will be flying a P-2V plane.

A human interest angle of the landing was on the deck of the Antietam when Ensign Wright landed. Lt.-Cmdr. (Doctor) Dan-

Governor Names Four Women To Safety Board

Bert T. Combs has appointed four women to the Governor's Safety Advisory Committee for the purpose of studying the needs of the Commonwealth in relation to public safety matters, and making such recommendations as it deems necessary.

The women named to the 77-member committee are: Mrs. Dallas Brightwell of Frankfort, Miss Cattie Lou Miller, Commissioner of Public Information, Miss Frances Holliday of Tateville and Mrs. Paul Westpheling of Fulton.

In appointing the members of the committee the Governor stated that: "Growing concern over the tragic toll of deaths and injuries on our highways has brought about a special conference to consider accident prevention problems."

The Governor's safety conference will be held at the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington on June 13 and 14. During the conference, the advisory committee will meet to consider specific problems and recommendations.

Among others on the committee are Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward, Attorney General John Breckinridge, KU President Floyd I. Fairman, Speaker of the House Harry King Lowman, President of the Senate Alvin Kidwell, Dr. Russell Teague, Commissioner of Health, Motor Transportation Commissioner Foster Ockerman, Mayor Robert Graham of Bowling Green and James Zimmerman, executive secretary of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce. The committee will serve without pay.

Dr. Joseph P. Leone of Frankfort is chairman of the committee. Many civic leaders in the Fulton area have been named delegates to the conference in Lexington.

New Formula, Appropriating State Road Money, Doubles Fulton County Fund

Fulton County's rural secondary and highway road appropriations for fiscal year 1961-1962 are double what they were in the last fiscal year, Henry Ward, Highway Commissioner announced today. In the 1960-1961 fiscal year the two programs spent $69,847 in the county, while the new appropriation, under the formula worked out by Ward and Governor Combs will be $140,696.88. Nearby Hickman County will also get double the amount spent for the next fiscal year than was spent in the past year's appropriation.

In 1960-1961 Hickman County got $1,053, while the amount appropriated for the next fiscal year is $143,780.64. The new formula replaces the long standing practice of political favoritism in the counties.

Both Fulton and Hickman counties have accepted the proposal advanced by the Rural Highway Commissioner that provides a plan where the monies allocated to the counties are spent at the discretion of the fiscal court. Each county has employed a qualified highway engineer to assist in the efficient expenditure of the funds.

Guy Hale, Jr. is the Fulton County engineer while Paul Wright is the Hickman County engineer.

The new formula represents a "new deal" for the counties, Commissioner Ward said, for it is the first time that rural secondary money has been allocated among the counties on an equitable basis. When the General Assembly raised the gasoline tax by two cents in 1948 to provide additional money for rural and secondary roads, it directed the Department of Highways to prepare a scientific formula for distribution of this revenue among the counties. The years passed, accompanied by an uneven spending of the money among the counties, until this year, when a formula was devised and approved by Governor Combs that guarantees fairness in distribution of this money.

Under this new formula, rural secondary funds derived from the two-cent gasoline tax will be distributed through the counties on this basis: one-fifth on rural population, one-fifth on mileage of rural roads, one-fifth equally, and two-fifths on the basis of rural area. This gives fair consideration to the counties that are large in area and with large mileages of roads. The rural highway fund of $5,000,000 appropriated by the General Assembly will continue to be distributed under the formula directed by the Assembly - one-third on area, one-third on population and one-third equally.

The Department of Revenue has estimated that the two-cent gasoline tax will produce $23,400,000 for 1961-62. A combined total of the two funds-rural secondary and rural highways - is used to give a clear picture of the total of State funds that will be expended for the benefit of each county under these programs. Costs of engineering, administration, maintenance and equipment of the program for each county will be charged to the allotment to that county.

Mrs. L. A. Clifton Offers Greenlea Cemetery As Gift To City of Fulton

Greenlea Cemetery has been offered to the City of Fulton as a gift from Mrs. L. A. Clifton, it was revealed at the Fulton City Council meeting Monday night. The privately owned cemetery was previously taken under consideration by the council at a purchase price of $8,000. The Council postponed final action on the gift offer until a study can be made of the perpetual care clause in the deeds of those persons who own lots in the cemetery.

Mrs. Clifton's generous offer makes no provision for any funds that might have been set aside for perpetual care. The City of Fulton maintains Fairview Cemetery, however the individual lot owners there pay small sums each year for grave care.

It was brought to the attention of the Fulton City Council Monday night that there are several people, including some city employees, who owe large sums of money on their gas and water bills. No real reason was determined as to why the city facilities had been allowed to continue despite the debts, but it was decided that a cut-off list would be drawn up and enforced immediately.

Also discussed at the meeting was the fact that a great deal of damage is done each year to trucks, cars and merchandise they carry, when the drivers of these vehicles fail to see the center post of the underpass on Kentucky Avenue. A meeting will be set with the IC Railroad officials and the highway department for talks on placing bright warning lights up and down the center post.

In other action taken, the council members placed their approval on the proposed ordinance for the Highlands sewer tax, amounting to $97,711.44; the contract with Lee Potter Smith and Associates of Paducah for architectural work on Milton School was approved; two new street lights were approved for the newly opened Deepwood Subdivision.

It was also brought up that several people have been known to take water from the outlet at the City Water Plant for hauling purposes and since there is no meter on the outlet, there is no way of knowing the exact amount of water taken. The council members decided that in order to clear up this matter, a meter and valve with a lock attached should be placed on the outlet and it will be shut off at night.

GRADUATES!

Among the over 600 graduates at the University of Tennessee Monday was a Fulton boy, Billy Mac Morris, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morris of Green Street. He received his B. S. degree in Physics.

Former South Fulton Teacher Writes Memories of Schoolmen

A former teacher in the Obion County School system, Miss Mary Ellen Adams, is today contributing an article that will be of interest to patrons of the school system. Miss Adams, who taught for seven years at South Fulton puts down her memories of three men whose careers were closely connected with the Obion County system. She has titled her contribution "Just Reminiscing" and we print it here for your pleasure.

The article follows:
JUST REMINISCING
By Mary Ellen Adams

A series of thoughts have chased through my mind recently following the deaths of three men with less than ten days. All three were formerly connected with the Obion County schools, but only one retired voluntarily. The educational careers of the other two ended under rather unusual circumstances.

When I was still in grammar school, I recall Mr. Ben A. Vaughn as he used to visit our new rural school. He had returned from World War I as somewhat a hero and been appointed to fill the unexpired term of his predecessor who had died in office. I remember our superintendent as a handsome young bachelor. I am sure now after more than twenty years of experience as a teacher that Mr. Vaughn could not possibly have acquired the tact and experience that all county superintendents should possess. Perhaps his decision to leave his position to study law was an undisguised blessing for education.

For years I have contended that there should be a universal requirement that to be eligible to serve as any kind of school superintendent one should have a minimum of five years of class room experience and three years service as an elementary or high school principal. Certainly I am aware that some superintendents have served with distinction without these qualifications, but I insist such requirements would serve as a wise safeguard and would not be unreasonable.

The second educational figure I shall discuss is Mr. S. H. Snow, who served as principal of our small rural school while I was a freshman. He taught me ancient history, and judging from my later interest in the subject, must have laid a sound foundation. I recall Mr. Snow as a man of rare conviction. As a teenager, I did not realize the courage it must have taken to discipline several high school girls by switching (or perhaps it was paddling) all of them. By present-day standards they were not guilty of any serious wrong-doings - probably merely "playing hooky on April Fool Day" - but I recall they had deliberately done something he had warned would result in punishment.

What made this action especially memorable was the fact of the fourteen-year-old daughter of a fellow teacher was included. What a hornet's nest Mr. Snow stirred up! The result was that he left the classroom forever and spent the remaining more than thirty years of his life farming and clerking in a grocery.

Mr. Snow's successor, Mr. Bob Glover, lies in state as I write this. He died suddenly of a heart attack at the age of eighty-seven. For several months his paralyzed maiden sister, "Miss Mattie" has roomed with a blind aunt of mine in a local nursing home. When I went to see my aunt last Saturday night, I was told of Mr. Glover's death before I entered the room.

There sat "Miss Mattie" slumped in her wheel chair muttering, "I just don't see how I can live without him." I knew of how faithful "Mr. Bob" had been to visit her and of how it was he who bore the major part of the expense of keeping her in a private home rather than putting her in the county rest home.

During that final visit, my aunt had mentioned to him my telling her the week before that Mr. Snow had been one of my teachers. His comment, as relayed by my aunt, was: "He was a good teacher."

At present, his plans include plenty of his favorite hobby, gardening. He and Mrs. Stone live on Fulton, Route Four.

Work Together!

Note Book

At sometime or another everybody gets stopped dead in their tracks for some reason or another and I want you to know that Monday of this week I got stopped the dearest and the coldest you ever saw in your life. I was terrible!

You see Monday the State dairy princess was an honored and a royal guest in Fulton. A group of interested dairy farmers and producers got together and had a lovely luncheon to honor the princess and I was privileged to be among those invited. I was a few minutes late for the luncheon, but a place was set for me and I walked in the Rebel Room and sat by my old friend, David Phelps of the Pure Milk Company with whom I have had many pleasant business associations through the years. The Pure Milk Company is a very valuable and appreciated advertising and printing account both at the News and the radio station and each Saturday morning on Operation Live-wire on WFUL I love to add lib some of the Pure Milk Company commercials. You've heard me, I know.

I get such fun out of talking about the Pure Milk Company products, because they are exceptionally good products and besides nearly all of the milk used and sold by Pure Milk Company is purchased in the immediate Fulton area, thus making a sizeable and profitable industry for our farmers. I am as sincere as all get out about the nutritious value of milk and its by-products and the fact that my family would much rather drink milk, than other beverages, is a testimonial to the fact that I make it readily available for their constant enjoyment.

But you wouldn't believe it if I told you that I don't believe I've had a glass of milk as a beverage since I was an infant. I don't know why. I just never cultivated the taste and even when there was a time in my life that I needed milk products for an abundance of calcium in the diet, I took pills with the ingredient concocted therein. The children have fun with me sometimes about drinking a pure, unadulterated glass of milk and have even tried to bribe me, but I haven't been able to get around to it. I love milk shakes, ice cream, cottage cheese, every kind of cheese that's manufactured, but the cool, pure glass of milk... no courage!

Well, I don't think that David knew about my no-milk-diet and when I sat down next to him, he poured a full glass of cool, cool milk for me and put it by my plate. I sort of snickered a little about it and looked around for a glass of water, but having arrived late there was no glass of water at my plate. I was thirsty too, and there I was, needing something liquid, and there was that glass of milk right at my tender side. I couldn't ask the waitress for water, because I felt it would hurt David's feelings and besides I would get caught in the most notorious fraud I ever perpetrated. Besides that, there was a huge picture of a milkmaid on the wall.

Does the Public Want To Know About Controversial Subjects? And If They Knew, What Would They Do?

Dr. Kevin McCann, president of Defiance College and former speech writer for President Eisenhower, urged newspaper editors and publishers attending the spring meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Newspaper Assn. to put the spine back into the Republic by becoming more controversial.

"Main Street was once the spine and brain of the Republic," he said, "but the spine has moved to Pennsylvania Avenue and the brain is somewhere on Madison Avenue or Harvard Yard."

Dr. McCann pointed out that the weekly newspaper was once controversial. Every town had two or three. Now, in 1961, responsibility has been sluffed off. Maybe, it's because the money comes in a lot easier, he opined.

Now we're going to comment a little bit on Dr. McCann's views, because he's laboring under a misapprehension about the money coming in easier. Fact is, the cost of operating small newspapers is getting so prohibitive that many of them are closing their doors forever, and some are consolidating to share the ever increasing costs. We are the greatest living authorities on what printed controversy does to the bank account, and while we shall always print some news and editorials that are controversial, we've found that doing so does not always influence readers and bring in advertising and printing accounts.

One time at a press convention we were on a lofty panel discussing the public's right to know. We took the view that we're not so sure that the public wants to know a lot of unpleasant things about unpleasant situations and in so stating our views we incurred the chagrin of such outstanding "freedom of the press advocates" as James Pope of the Courier-Journal and Norman Isaacs of the Louisville Times.

You know yourself that at some time or another you've taken a dim view of some controversial news stories and editorials we have printed about your government and your friends. Some have applauded, some have condemned, but rarely have we been ridden down Lake Street as heroes for taking a vital stand. Actually, the opposite is true. We have noticed when some special recognition has been accorded to deserving citizens we have been mentioned, and then by-passed because our position in the community has been "too controversial." We don't mind. We enjoy the inner satisfaction of having the courage of our convictions, but it is not always a comforting thought to realize that the personal acceptance goes way down because we have had such courage. Courage is a luxury.

Dr. McCann goes on to say that: "Only newspapers can do something to stir up public interest in the three great issues:

- Education;
- Community service;
- Economic development."

We have taken an active participation in all three and more and yet there are many more subjects, highly controversial, that need the attention of all of us, instead of them becoming the private province of a newspaper editor.

Dr. McCann, as you will note above, is not the owner of a newspaper, so he can afford to urge newspapers to become more controversial, and thereby incur the personal wrath of more people, while the public says "so what?"

We wonder what Dr. McCann would do if he lived in Fulton and knew that:

Sunday liquor sales in the twin cities have become so flagrant that now the law violators make home deliveries?

A "speed trap" for truckers and motorists is becoming so widespread around the city that truckers go forty miles out of their way to by-pass the twin cities.

Some public officials apparently condone the "no-news-ban" placed on some news media in the area.

We could go ad infinitum about controversial news stories that could be printed, but we keep asking ourselves the question we asked at the press convention:

"Does the public want to know? And if they knew, would they care?"

SERMONETTE OF THE WEEK

The Dignity Of Labor

By Rev. Leo J. Trese
Author of Many Are One

There is a phrase which gets kicked around without much thought as to its true meaning, "The Dignity of Labor."

I have heard people talk as though labor were something good and desirable in itself. And yet work, in the sense of some task we have to do in exchange for our daily bread, is one of the penalties humanity suffered as a result of Original Sin. It is in the same class as suffering and death. Work is something to be accepted as inevitable, to be born patiently and to be supernaturalized into a means of grace through the motive which we bring to our work. That motive might be expressed: "This is God's will for me; it is for Him that I shall do it; and because it is for Him, I shall give it the best I've got."

There are some people who cannot sit still. They must be doing something, if it is only mopping an already clean floor. But I have never met a holy person practicing penance, who liked the penance for its own sake. And I've never met a normal man or woman who wouldn't, if all things were equal, prefer to be off fishing, or lazing in an easy chair with a good book.

I have underlined "if all things were equal" because it is a necessary qualification. Christ in the carpenter shop sanctified labor, just as Christ on the cross sanctified suffering. Labor, as the fulfillment of God's will is a source of merit, atoning for sin and laying up glory in Heaven. Through it I work out my own salvation, and contribute to the material and spiritual well-being of my neighbor.

But a man still doesn't have to like work. It would be a great mistake for a Christian to feel uneasy in conscience simply because, if he had his own choice, he'd rather be swinging a golf club than selling insurance.

A Christian's labor has a supernatural motive and an eternal value. And this holds true, whatever the nature of the work may be. If we are fortunate enough to get a job for which we have aptitude, and in which we can achieve some success, then we say that we "enjoy" our work, or are happy in our work. But, if we are honest, we admit that we still like to see the holidays roll around.

100 Years Ago This Week

An Historical review of THE CIVIL WAR DAY-BY-DAY
(Material is from publication of exactly one hundred years ago; original wording from references in the Library of Congress, Washington. Reporting in the papers was usually very one-sided; we seek to be fair in coverage and preserve a national balance. . . . ED.)

BY WILLIAM H. McHENRY

By William H. McHenry
Second week in June

The Civil War had really started by the second week in June of 1861. There was fighting in Virginia and in Missouri. In between, Kentucky was a bulwark against both sides because of its stand for neutrality.

In Benton County, Missouri, there was a clash between a Home Guard (said to number 700) and a group of 400 well-armed Secessionists under Col. Rainwater. According to the eastern papers, the fight occurred while the Home Guard was in camp about eighteen miles north-east of Warsaw. The secessionists attacked the sleeping Home Guard, killed 25, wounded 2, and drove the remainder from the camp. The Southerners had eight killed, and "they hauled eight wagon loads of their wounded away."

Missouri inhabitants were fighting their personal wars as they chose sides. Nearly every town had its own small war. In Booneville a reporter asked the Mayor of the town "Why he had a handkerchief around his neck in the boiling sun?" The Mayor didn't answer, but a bystander did. It seems that one of these disagreements, so common to the times, had caused a "shooting affray, in which the Mayor participated."

Women's Nursing Corps formed: June 14 the Secretary of War issued an order for the substitution of women for men as nurses in the general hospitals wherever it can be effected. Said the papers: "No woman will be received unless they are above the age of 30 and furnished with certificates of good character and capacity. Miss Dorothy L. Dix has been appointed superintendent of the women nurses and has sole authority."

Battle of Big Bethel, June 10: Union soldiers from Ft. Monroe took a walk up towards Yorktown. They ran into Confederate troops who put up a scrap. The Union men retreated, leaving a few dead. Prisoners were taken by both sides. There had been some talk that "Any rebel captured would be treated as a traitor." Not so. Both sides had prisoners, the captured Confederates were treated as prisoners of war, causing the Richmond papers to exult that the secessionists were being treated as soldiers, not as rebels.

Later a commission was set up to exchange prisoners. . . man for man, with a rating scale in which officers according to rank, were worth so many enlisted men. The system would work until the latter months of the war.

Boonville, Missouri, saw a battle between the two sides on June 17. Young Brig. General Lyon led the Union forces in a struggle to save Missouri for the Union.

Secession had a new face! Now the world was to see a part of a state secede from a seceded state! West Virginia seceded from Virginia . . . or, if you wish to put it another way, "West Virginia remained loyal to the Union."

Call it what you will, the westernmost counties of Virginia did not approve of secession from the Union, and on June 11, the new state of West Virginia was born.

In that part of Virginia east of the Alleghenies, the people were becoming almost solidly for the South, with Unionists either changing their faith, or moving away. In West Virginia, the trend was reversed. The papers said:

"There were strong Union sermons delivered in the Churches yesterday. A day of fasting was decreed. Dissenters from Union faith were invited to leave."

There were reports that a leading Virginia Unionist, the Hon. John S. Carlisle, was " . . . the leading spirit in the Union movement . . . he is closeted with prominent men perfecting a scheme of operations." Other reports said that the Federal government had sent 2,000 Maynard rifles to western Virginia for the encouragement of the Union movement."

And over in England, the London Times commented on the Civil War in America: "They fight, willing, but with unwilling hands."

They like the hand to strike . . . they swing the instruments of death, but a mysterious power averts the stroke, or blunts the edge. Are they in earnest, or are they playing at war?"

The Nation could still laugh. In Cincinnati the body of a drowned man was found in the Ohio River, but no relative would come forward to claim the body for burial. Then the papers announced that the dead man had $275 in gold on his person. Immediately a long line of "inconsolable relatives" came forward to claim the body! Grim, yes, but the Nation would become used to even a grimmer sort of humor during the next four years.

The News reports your ----
Diary of Doin's
(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

Kentucky is everywhere you go, we've come to believe. Many people who've played in your backyard have gone to make their marks in the world and some of those marks have become imprinted indelibly in the sands of success. Among many "we knew him when" favorites is Elvis Stahr, Jr., Secretary of the Army in the Cabinet of President John Kennedy. While we know that Secretary is married to a lovely girl, and they have three children, many of us don't know a lot about this charming lady who will perhaps visit in Fulton this summer.

Recently the Washington Evening Star published an interview with Mrs. Stahr and it tells so much that is so interesting, we are reprinting the story for your enjoyment. A large picture of Mrs. Stahr and the children appeared with the interview and we have written for it for publication in a later issue. But right now, let's visit with Mrs. Elvis Stahr, Jr. Here's the story:

By RUTH DEAN
Star Staff Writer

Although she says she didn't have the stamina to follow a career in ballet, Mrs. Elvis Stahr, Jr., proved she had it when her husband joined President Kennedy's New Frontier as Secretary of the Army.

The petite official wife was just two days out of a sick bed when she accompanied her husband to the first big reception in their honor. The afternoon of the reception, she recalls, "I got a shot of vitamin B complex so I could stand in the receiving line."

Except for a few unnoticeable intervals when she sat on a sofa to rest, none of the guests was the wiser that the dazzling smile and warm handshake hid a pair of shaky knees.

What so amused Mrs. Stahr was that the virus that demobilized her came not from the Inaugural Week crowds and extreme weather to which she was exposed but from their 8-year-old daughter, Stephanie, who brought it from school after they'd returned home to West Virginia to pack for Washington.

No Sneezes
"We sat out there on Pennsylvania avenue in extreme cold for three-and-a-half hours watching the (Inaugural) parade and I never felt better. Never a sniffle or a sneeze," she exclaimed with a laugh. "And that on top of house-hunting. I looked at 60 houses before I found what we wanted."

The Stahrs occupy a spacious Colonial 10-room home on the edge of Rock Creek Park that is convenient to everything. But it must seem small in comparison to the 27-room mansion in which they've lived for the last two years while Mr. Stahr was president of the University of West Virginia. Before that they lived in a nine-room apartment in an old residential district of Pittsburgh when Mr. Stahr was vice chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Stahr is used to city living. She was born in New York City, where she grew up, except for a brief period in her childhood when she lived in The Hague, the Netherlands, to which business took her father, the late Mr. Edward Berkfield. Her mother still resides in New York.

Mrs. Stahr's ballet aspirations were a natural outgrowth of a childhood spent in familiarity with the arts. Every Saturday without fail she was taken to the children's concerts in Carnegie Hall ("sometimes I read the funny papers during the concert," she confessed mischievously); every Friday afternoon to the Philharmonic concerts, and Saturday afternoons to the Metropolitan Opera, where her father's cousin was an assistant conductor.

An only child, Mrs. Stahr was encouraged in her dance aspirations and studied with such well-known teachers as Albertina Rasch, Mary Wigman and Hanya Holm, the latter famed for her choreography of Broadway musical productions.

"But when I was 17, I stopped taking dancing," she said. "I realized I wasn't strong enough to take the gaff. I had a little bit of talent but I also knew ballet took a lot of energy and strength I didn't have. So I made my debut and settled down to the social whirl."

In the early part of World War II, Mrs. Stahr took a six-month course in marine drafting at Tampa (Fla.) University and got a job, her first, at the Tampa Shipyard as a junior draftsman.

"It was the best thing that ever happened to me, after the meaningless social whirl of New York and being on silly committees," she said. "We put everything we had into getting those ships out, after seeing them launched. When we'd hear one of them had been sunk, we'd be heartbroken for days."

It was the accident of changing war jobs that set the stage for Mrs. Stahr's meeting her future husband. Toward the war's close she returned to New York and became a draftsman for a company that made compressed-air cylinders. One week and some old friends she'd known in Florida invited her to their housewarming in Philadelphia.

With amusement she recalled her friends "weren't playing Cupid. They just invited me as their best woman friend and Elvis as their best man friend. Both of us, it turned out, were from New York. We were married three months later."

In Kentucky

That was in 1946 when Mr. Stahr was just out of the Army, back from service in the CBI theatre and resuming law practice in Wall Street. The next year he was asked to come to the University of Kentucky, his old alma mater, and a year later became dean of their law school, thus at 32 becoming the youngest law dean in the country.

For Mr. Stahr it marked a happy return to his home State, and family ties. He was born in Hickman. His father, now 74 years old is a Western Kentucky circuit judge who is immensely popular with his fellow Kentuckians. The Stahrs' present sojourn in Washington is not their first. During the nine years he was associated with the University of Kentucky, and before going to Pittsburgh in 1957, Mr. Stahr took several leaves of absence to come to Washington for Government service. During the Korean War he was special assistant to Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr.

So Mrs. Stahr knew just what she wanted in home location when they came here this time. "I've lived all over this man's city," she said gaily. "I just love Washington because it is so beautiful."

Besides Stephanie who is an A-student at Beauvoir School ("She's our little scholar," says her mother proudly), the Stahrs have other children, 3-year-old Stuart, and 2-year-old Bradford. The little boys have their own quarters on the first floor of the home, complete with playroom and kitchenette where their nurse can prepare their meals. Mrs. Stahr pointed out.

But most of their supervision comes from Mother. That's why Mrs. Stahr feels that "with two children under 3, I can't get into too many activities."

The Army Secretary's wife shares many interests with her husband, although she admits that keeping up with the brilliant former Rhodes scholar is "sometimes exhausting." She can't hope to match his tennis prowess, for example, so she "just watches." But both have a common interest in music, reading and art.

One of the works of art they treasure most in their new home is a modern abstract in the front hall, a farewell gift to them from Joe Moss, a Morgantown, W. Va. artist friend. The picture depicts Mr. Stahr on horseback, an artistic theme Mrs. Stahr thinks significantly tells the story of her husband's career.

What makes the picture so technically interesting is the artist's choice of medium—varying layers of cutout white tissue paper fixed to a black background with egg white, a sort of modern tempera technique.

How nice it was to get a letter from Virginia Carr from Michigan this week. Since Virginia has so many friends in Fulton (and since so many of the folks at Ferry-Morse get the News) we thought you might enjoy her report from the auto city.

Here 'tis:

Dear Jo:

If you can overlook this fancy writing paper, (all I can find) and all the errors I probably will make not used to this electric IBM) I will send you a report from Michigan. First of all our weather is Ge-gorgeous (with the exception of last Friday when it snowed slightly). The next day it was 75. I think the worst day we had since my return was the day Agnes left Detroit and I almost came back with her, it was so miserable.

I have been in the throes of welcome-back parties and it is wonderful seeing old friends. My house was in such chaos when I walked into it (furniture, pictures, etc. all over the center of each room.) I had it all redecorated and at Easter had gotten it ready for the painters so things were just as I had left them. With all these parties and such late hours that if it wasn't for my mother goading me on (she is 83) I guess I wouldn't have accomplished too much. But thanks to her my place is ready and waiting for some of my Fulton friends.

Of course the minute Mother got home (me) daughter went to St. Louis. My son-in-law is a Pediatrician and Children's Hospital sent him there to represent them at a Pediatric clinic. So you know who's taking care of what!! This is one good way of renewing acquaintances with your grandchildren. But I was glad to help out altho' while it will do Joann good to get away from it all, it remains to be seen what it does to me, but then again, my Mother is still here. They really are little angels! Ahem!

But now for the more serious—I did enjoy and appreciate the luncheon we had and thought the newspaper article most complimentary. I was wondering if you couldn't arrange to send me the paper so I can keep up on all the Fulton news. You could let me know what it costs by the year. This way I would be sure I could keep track of my other home.

One of the girls wrote and told me Mattie Cook's husband had a serious heart attack. I was certainly sorry to hear about that and hope at this writing he has improved.

I wrote asking the company to send me Plant life so if I get it and also the paper I should be well informed shouldn't I? I expect if Mr. Pawlukiewicz could see this typing he'd consider himself lucky I left.

Well Jo, again many thanks for your hospitality and friendship. I will be waiting to get a copy of the paper and the information about subscribing to it for a year. My best to you and your family.

Sincerely,
Virginia (Carr)

Dear Paul:

Thanks so much for sending the cards and informals. They are beautiful. I have the customs declaration of what they cost but nothing about postage.

Peoche and I were in Spain and Portugal last week. We saw the shrine at Fatima but I was less impressed than I had expected to be. The Medieval shrines seem so much more real than one of such recent date. On our way back to Lisbon however we passed pilgrims, between fifty and a hundred in number, on foot and with staffs, walking the forty-five miles from Lisbon to Fatima to pray for Portugals affairs in Angola and that was impressive.

And then, as if aroused by the sight of the pilgrims, our guide on the bus suddenly burst into a tirade against Stevenson and his vote in the U. N. It certainly wasn't the best policy for a travel agency catering to American tourists but, together with the sight of the pilgrims, did give us an incisive flash of insight into Portuguese pride and feeling.

Fulton is a "most happy" place this week with the extended, we hope, visit of Dorothy Granberry Edwards who arrived Sunday from Miami. Dorothy is sharing her visit as the house guest of the Homer Wilsons, Mrs. Hoyt Moore and others and in between times all of her old friends are having fun visiting and entertaining for her. Elsewhere in this diary is the party given on Monday and today (Thursday) at the Park Terrace Irene White and Florence Beadles will have a luncheon for Dorothy.

All of us are anxiously awaiting the news from Chicago about Happy Edwards, who has been gone from Miami since May 1 on a luxury yacht on which he is the chief steward. Happy is ailing a little bit in the Windy City and is expected home this week-end. Dorothy's visit is planned for about three weeks in these parts and we hope that nothing happens to change the plans.

Mrs. Homer Wilson, Miss Helen King and Mrs. Thomas Mahan were the hostesses for a delightful luncheon Monday afternoon at the Park Terrace honoring a popular visitor from Miami, Mrs. Howard Edwards.

The guests were seated at a long table, featuring an arrangement of lovely red roses in a silver bowl. The guest of honor was presented a gift by the hostesses.

Twenty-seven ladies attended the affair.

All of the Methodist ministers and their families were honored at a buffet dinner at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Leggett Monday night. Arrangements of summer flowers were used throughout the house.

Fourteen guests attended the dinner and enjoyed watching slides of Rev. Leggett's recent trip to South America.

Miss Peggy Ann Counce, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Milton Counce of South Fulton, has become an entrant in the Union City Miss Obion County for Miss America pageant to be held Friday night, June 9. She is one of over 15 lovely young ladies from Obion county entered in the event.

Miss Counce was graduated recently from South Fulton High School where she was a cheerleader, class officer and a member of the royal homecoming court. She was listed in the school's Who's Who. Her hobbies are swimming and cooking and she plans to attend Lambuth College in the fall.

Seventeen guests were present at a bridge-luncheon last Saturday at the Park Terrace honoring Mrs. Bill Leath of Humboldt who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Barry. Mrs. Will Amberg of Hickman was hostess.

The guest of honor was presented with a lovely gift and since Saturday was also her birthday, she was given a beautiful birthday cake by the hostess.

Miss Carole Schrader was the hostess to a "Come As You Are" breakfast honoring Miss Judy Maynard, popular South Fulton student who is moving to Tampa, Florida.

The party was a surprise to the honoree as well as the other guests. The girls were rounded up at 7:00 a. m. and went to Miss Schrader's home on Paducah Street for breakfast.

Three 1961 graduates of Fulton High have taken the top places in the local Jaycee sponsored Road-E-O held recently at the Piggy Wiggly parking lot. Jimmy Williams won first place and is now eligible to compete in the State finals to be held at Murray on June 10.

The other top finishers were Charles Rice and Tommy Carney.

Several friends and neighbors of Coy Yates took time off from their own duties and brought their tractors and equipment over to put in a crop for Mr. Yates, who has been in the Memphis Hospital for a couple of weeks.

Some of the people who helped out during the day were R. K. Graves, James Earl Morgan, Sam Winstead, Barry Rozzell, L. J. Boyd, Harry Yates, Michael McClain, B. Rozzell, Butch McClain, Jasper Williams, Hazel Walker, Hester Evans, W. A. Crittendon, B. G. Lowry, Bob Cannon, Will

Kentucky's lovely young Dairy Princess, Miss Anita Lester, was the special guest at a luncheon held at the Derby Monday, in connection with the annual June Dairy month celebration.

Prior to the luncheon, a tour of the various area dairy farms was held.

John Cunningham, son of former Fultonians, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Cunningham of Tyner, Tennessee, has received the Chemistry Award, given to outstanding chemistry students at Freed Hardeman College. John is a 1960 graduate of Fulton High School.

ture near my plate and I thought a few times I'd just pick it up and borrow a glass and have a nice cool glass of water. You know what was in that pitcher... yep, you're right... milk!

Across from me sat Harry Barry and Dr. Hamilton, the new health doctor. They kept drinking up that there milk and then refilling their glasses and then here comes that waitress again and fills up that pitcher with more milk and there I was as thirsty as a big ole cow on an August day. But still I played cat and mouse with David and the glass of milk. I had visions of just picking up the glass and swallowing the contents in one fell swoop and forgetting about the whole thing. Then I had visions of getting sick at the table and having to leave and explain that the milk made me sick... ye gads, that, during June and Dairy Month and me looking right square at that dairy princess. I hoped, beyond hope that I would get a telephone call and I could sneak out and get a glass of ice tea, or water, or coffee, or gasoline, but the call didn't come through.

You know how it is at a luncheon. When the conversation lags, and you're waiting to start another it's always a good gesture to sip on some water, or coffee, or etcetera. And what did I have... milk! I finally got to feeling sorry for myself and thought I ought to cry and drink my tears, but they would have been salty and then I would have really needed something wet and cool that wasn't milk.

How did the ordeal finally end. Good ole David said, "Jo, if you don't want the milk, you may order coffee." How could you tell such a nice fellow and all the other luncheon guests that you don't drink milk... and at a dairy luncheon, too. I finally confessed to David, and as usual he was the wonderful gent I've always thought him to be. He laughed and I ordered a glass of water and you never saw a waitress fill up a glass so many times. It's like the old saying... whatever you can't get you want badly and I think I worked myself into a mild hysteria about that water and became a bosom pal of the Ancient Mariner... water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink.

BONUS MONEY—

there are many drug products in the City Drug display. For a family outing, the Leader Sporting Goods store is offering drink coolers in various sizes and a nice minnow bucket for that enjoyable fishing trip.

If any member of the family is planning a trip, there is a very nice three-piece set of luggage being offered by Kasnow's Department store and there are also several travel items shown by some of the other merchants.

There is even a feature for the dieting members of the family! Evans Drug is offering "Low Calorie Diet Aid" to those who want it.

So don't forget, when you shop at any of the participating stores, ask the salespeople for your bonus money and head for the "Country Trading Store." It is open every Tuesday morning and Friday afternoon throughout the summer months.

Wingo Man Is Killed Monday In Auto Mishap

One man was killed and another seriously injured in a wreck Monday afternoon approximately one mile south of Lone Oak on US-45. Orby Corbett Clark, 67, the driver of the car, was killed instantly. Billy Gene Southard, 28, was seriously injured and taken to Fuller-Gilliam Hospital in Mayfield. Both men were residents of Wingo.

State Trooper Creston Rudolph, who investigated the accident, stated that the automobile went off the highway on the right shoulder and traveled 222 feet before it swerved back across the road, traveled about 75 feet and plunged into a roadside ditch. The car then went 25 feet in the ditch before striking a tree.

Rudolph also said that the speedometer on the car "locked" at 115 miles an hour when the car crashed. The left front tire of the car was flat, but it could not be determined whether the wreck was the result of a blowout or whether the tire blew out when the car struck an embankment.

Body of John West Is Found in Ditch

The body was mired in mud and Hickman County coroner, Dr. V. A. Jackson, said he apparently had been dead for several days. He ruled the death was from natural causes.

Mrs. Carey Fields

There is no improvement in the condition of Mrs. Lucy Pettit who has been in bed for several months. She is suffering the infirmities of age, and children and step-children remain at her bedside, grandchildren too. She is at the home of Mrs. Katie Bynum near St. Line Road.

Mrs. Carl Westbrook is suffering from a nervous disorder, and is under the care of her physician Dr. Paul Wilson, Dresden.

The vacation bible school will begin the third week in June and all leaders have been selected. All children in this area urged to attend during the week at New Salem Baptist Church with the pastor Rev. James Holt and Mrs. Holt as leaders of all departments.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Westbrook moved from their farm last week to Mayfield. The Westbrook family lived near our village for most of their married life. Mr. Westbrook served as justice of peace many years ago while Mrs. Westbrook taught school around here sometime ago, now they are retiring, since Mr. Westbrooks health isn't so good. He is a sufferer of arthritis and is unable to work.

The Homecoming held at New Salem Baptist Church was attended Sunday by a large crowd. The day began with Sunday School at 10 A. M. The morning service was conducted by Rev. James Holt. Lunch was spread at noon under the "Pines." The huge table was loaded with delicious food, with plenty of iced tea and kool aid for the kiddies.

Many visitors came our way and singers from every nook and corner, where the good old southern hospitality is abundant.

The afternoon was devoted to singing with the Friendly Five Quartet on program. Some fine group singing was had, with all our young people taking part as leaders. The entire day was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Adams Chapel Baptist Church of Weakley County will be hosts to the Executive Board meeting Monday night (tonight June 5) of all Baptist Churches in Weakley County representing.

V. B. S. will be held at Old Bethel church the second week in June. Children and all young people are invited. The announcement has already been made, along with parents invited. The work has been lined up in advance of the date.

We have two beautiful oak trees in our back yard now in full leaf, and I hope the worms don't destroy their foliage as during the past two summers, since we need shade in that part of the lawn. If the pest attack all leaves curl up and come tumbling down before autumn leaving no shade. Up front we have a hugh poplar, or some sort of Bamboo Gilliam, that throws off its sap, which might be of medicinal value so badly, that none of our boys park cars near it. The sap that drip day and night leaves bare places on car tops, absolutely taking paint or simonizing bare clean to metal. We observe this a few years ago after car tops were be-speckled and we couldn't account for it for some time. The aged tall cedars have been here many years, say nigh onto a hundred years and they are just covered with bag-worms. What a pity!

Since the above was written Mrs. Lucy Pettit passed away Sunday after a long illness. The aged lady was well known, a beloved christian woman who made her home with her daughter Mrs. Kate Bynum of near St. Line.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruble Thomas and son Ricky have been suffering from a deep siege of colds for the past two weeks requiring some medical care of Dr. Wilson of Dresden, Tennessee.

DUKEDOM ROUTE 1

By Constance Jones

The farmers have been very busy on this route and have most of the corn crop planted and a lot of potatoes and tobacco set and we have had a nice shower this morning and hope we will have more, so the farmers can finish setting tobacco and sweet potatoes.

Miss Constance Jones had a Stanley party last Wednesday afternoon and had a nice time with several ladies attending and a good order.

Several from this route are attending the singing school being taught at Pleasant View Baptist Church.

Mrs. Gertie Mae Parker was home from Jackson, Tennessee a few days last week and had as her guest over the weekend Miss Bonnie Bishop of Boliver, Tennessee.

Mrs. Lewis Armstrong is visiting her sister Mrs. Hattie Thorp in Mayfield a few days.

Several from this community attended the Homecoming of New Salem Baptist Church and Bro. James Holt preached a good sermon at the 11 o'clock hour. They had a wonderful dinner at the noon hour and then fine singing in the afternoon with the Friendly Five Quartet of Union City doing the singing and it sure was good singing.

Miss Constance Jones spent last Saturday with Mrs. Rice Mayo.

We had a nice crowd at the Dukedom Methodist Church to hear Rev. Keith Smith preach his last sermon, as he is being transferred to Paris Circuit, Paris, Tennessee. We all hate to see them go, but we pray for them a good year.

Rev. Harold Craig of Lynnville, Kentucky is being sent to Fulton Circuit and will be our pastor at Dukedom Methodist Church, and we are praying for a good year.

Miss Ora Thomas spent Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Thomas and attended church at Pleasant View Church.

Mr. Glen Clements is very sick at this writing and his many friends are hoping he will soon be much better.

In a letter received by Supt. W. L. Holland last week, the State Board of Education in Frankfort has recommended that Milton Elementary School be rebuilt on the same site it previously occupied before it burned several months ago.

Private David Pirtle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pirtle, Water Valley, Kentucky, is currently taking his basic combat training with Company A, 13th Battalion of the Fourth Training Regiment (BTC) at the US Army Training Center, Armor.

During Private Pirtle's eight week stay in the Fourth Regiment, which is commanded by Colonel Marvin A. Kreidberg, emphasis will be placed on training the new soldier in the duties of the individual rifleman, in indoctrinating him in the ways of military life and, in general, preparing him for subsequent training in the more advanced skills required in the Modern Army.

Prior to entering the service, Private Pirtle attended Murray State College.

Navy aircraft patrol Squadron Five at Jacksonville, Fla., can boast of several achievements, the most recent being its participation in the recovery of America's first astronaut, Cdr. Alan Shepherd, USN.

Serving with the squadron is Terry E. Murray, aviation structural mechanic third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frazier T. Murray of Route 1, Fulton, Ky.

The squadron's P2V "Neptune" aircraft were on station down range from Cape Canaveral, Fla., and monitored the capsule's flight from 10 minutes after launching until the water landing.

FORMER TEACHER—

is interesting: "Yes, Mr. Snow was a good man and a good teacher. I always felt sorry for him. He never seemed to prosper financially—was continually buying a home for which he could not pay in the end."

Yes, Mr. Glover had prospered financially, but there was a vast difference in the home situations of the two men. Mr. Glover never reared a family, and his first wife taught with him for years. Mr. Snow reared a family and, for many years, had an invalid wife, who never did any public work. Perhaps he would have fared better, poor as teachers' salaries are, had he remained in the classroom where he belonged instead of being forced into farming and clerking—two jobs into which he could never put either his heart or talents. Who knows?
